ITINERARY OF THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC AND CO-OPERATING FORCES IN THE GETTYSBURG CAMPAIGN, JUNE AND JULY, 1863.

JUNE 5.

The Army of the Potomac, commanded by Major General Joseph Hooker, was posted on the north bank of the Rappahannock River, confronting the Confederate Army of Northern Virginia, under General Robert E. Lee, mainly concentrated about the town of Fredericksburg, on the south bank of the river. The several corps of the Army of the Potomac were distributed as follows: 1st Corps (Reynolds') in the vicinity of White Oak Church; 2d Corps (Couch's) near Falmouth; 3d Corps (Birney's) at Boscobel, near Falmouth; 5th Corps (Meade's) in the vicinity of Banks', United States, and adjacent fords on the Rappahannock; 6th Corps (Sedgwick's) near White Oak Church, with the 2d Division (Howe's) thrown forward to Franklin's Crossing of the Rappahannock, a little below Fredericksburg, near the mouth of Deep Run; 11th Corps (Howard's) near Brooke's Station, on the Aquia Creek Railroad; and the 12th Corps (Slocum's) near Stafford Court House and Aquia Landing. The Cavalry Corps (Pleasanton's) had two divisions in the vicinity of Warrenton Junction and one division in the neighborhood of Brooke's Station.

JUNE 6.

Howe's (2d) division, 6th Army Corps, crossed the Rappahannock at Franklin's Crossing. Wright's (1st) and Newton's (3d) divisions were moved to the same point from White Oak Church, taking position on the north bank of the river.

JUNE 7.

Wright's (1st) division, 6th Corps, was sent across the Rappahannock at Franklin's Crossing, relieving Howe's (2d) division, which returned to the north side.

JUNE 8.

The Cavalry Corps (Pleasanton's), consisting of Buford's (1st), D. McM. Gregg's (3d), and Duffie's (2d) divisions, and the Regular Reserve Brigade, supported by detachments of infantry under Generals Adelbert Ames and David A. Russell, moved to Kelly's and Beverly Fords preparatory to crossing the Rappahannock on a reconnaissance towards Culpeper.

JUNE 9.

Newton's (3d) division, 6th Corps, relieved Wright's (1st) division on the south bank of the Rappahannock at Franklin's Crossing. The Cavalry Corps, supported by Generals Ames' and Russell's infantry, crossed the Rappahannock at Kelly's and Beverly Fords, fought the enemy at or near Beverly Ford, Brandy Station, and Stevensburg, and recrossed the river at Rappahannock Station and Beverly Ford.

JUNE 10.

The Cavalry Corps took position in the neighborhood of Warrenton Junction. Its infantry supports in the reconnaissance of the day previous rejoined their respective commands. Howe's (2d) division, 6th Corps, moved from Franklin's Crossing to Aquia Creek.
